THE HUNTINGTON WEEKLY NEWS

VOLUME 5 HUNTINGTON, TEXAS, FRIDAY, MAR. 24, 1933 NUMBER 14

TOWN TOPICS

By MICKIE

John Dennis and Jesse Hamilton have incorpulated their barber shops. Jesse made the propulition and and John axsepted. Ump! Ump! Ump! Ain't dat sumpin'.

You just can't ever tell what's going to happen to a fellow. Take the case of Ernest Ellis for instance. Always healthy looking, but came up ailing the other evening and upon being examined it was discovered he had "larngitis" and symptoms of fluctatious "asparagus," which if both become conflicted in his body will produce "petritis," which is almost incurable. But Ray Stewart, local pharmacist, thinks he has the trouble checked in its early stages, as he used two scrupples of chlorate of potash in filling out the prescription, which if it don't kill Mr. Ellis, is a sure cure for "larngitis."

Sometime a bunch of people can get excited and go to pieces over nothing, and that is just what happened to a bunch of local citizens late the other evening at the Davis garage. Floyd Marshall, Chester Davis, Leon Yeates, Hasting Hawkins and Rankin House, were all sitting on the bench at the garage, talking peaceably and quiet, when suddenly they were disturbed by what they thought was a gun shot but as a T model ford was coming up the street they deciced it was a blow-out, but just as the ford hit the dip two more shots were heard and flames belched out, and figuring they were being fired upon they thought it time to move out. So Floyd dashed in the garage office door, followed by the rest, except House, who sought another hiding. Chester the last hobbling in and asked, "had he better shut the door," Floyd replying, "hell no, get behind something," and all the time Hasting and Leon were scrambling for protection behind the same object in the same corner. After things had quietened down they came out and discovered they had got terribly excited over C. A. Skipper's car back-firing just across the street at Brown's station while Carroll Hamilton was working on it. But when they heard the shots and saw the fire flash, it was nearly dark, and it sounded and looked like gunfire from the car passing at the time, and they all just knew they were being shot at. House finally came out of the alley between the garage and John Foster's store.

TWO LOCAL BARBER SHOPS CONSOLIDATE

Jesse Hamilton, who for the past number of years has operated a barber shop in the T. L. Wilson building on Main street, is no longer in the same old stand, but is now located in the John Dennis stand, he and Mr. Dennis having consolidated their shops on Tuesday of this week.

With both barber shops going together their one shop will be well equipped and Messrs. Hamilton and Dennis feel that they will be in position to give better barber service than ever before. Both shops have enjoyed a nice trade by giving satisfactory service in the past, and it is their aim to give even more satisfactory service since making the change.

The new concern solicits the continuance of the trade of their old customers and friends, as well as new ones, in the future.

Scarbrough White

Contributed by
(MISS JUANITA SITTON)

The people of Huntington experienced a severe shock when they received word March 6 that Scarbrough White was dead. Scarbrough died of pneumonia at his home in Ravenden, Arkansas. He was buried March 5 at Imboden, Arkansas cemetery. Brother Ferguson, pastor of the Baptist church there, officiated.

He was born October 25, 1916. His parents moved to Huntington when he was quite small and here he lived and attended school. His family moved to Ravenden in October 1932 and Scarbrough left his friends to find new ones. Scarbrough was one of Huntington's finest young men. He was always a leader among his friends and was ever anxious to help those who asked it of him.

He was a devoted Christian and a member of the Baptist church since December 1931. Scarbrough was true to the principles of honesty, was sincere in all that he attempted to do, and was open minded and clean minded. He not only played fair and was a clean sport on the school ground, but he played fair in life and faced life as unflinching and as full of anticipation as an athlete faces a game. He was a boy who had high ideals and courage. It is obvious that he could have done something in the world that would have been a satisfaction to him and a worthwhile piece of work.

He is survived by his parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. H. White, three brothers; Travis, Hurndon and Curtis, and a sister, Dessie.

Since Scarbrough in his short life used his time as did Franklin, he could have said, "If thou love life then waste not time, for time is the stuff that life is made of."

CHURCH HOUSE COLLAPSED JUST BEFORE THE PLAY

A large crowd gathered Tuesday night at the Manning Cut-Off church to see "The Red Headed Step Child," a play which was to be presented by the Lala Hill school at that place and which closed last Friday.

But the house was so packed with people that the foundation of the floor could not withstand the load and it gave way just before the play started, and it turned out to be a merry scramble of the audience to get out of the house. Many from Huntington who attended say it was real comical to see people scrambling and tumbling over each other trying to get to the doors and windows and every other available hole that led out of the building. No one was injured.

The play was postponed until Wednesday night where it was successfully put on at the Lala Hill school house. Another large crowd attended.

Mr. Hawkins was taken ill last Friday and since that time has been a real sick man. His illness is of the enfluenza nature which the attending physician says came near running into pneumonia.

GROVER HENRY SUFFERS INJURY WHILE AT WORK

Grover Henry, who during the cotton ginning season operates the Stroud Gin Company, was painfully injured Monday while he was at work on the erection of a new residence just west of town. He was injured when a scaffold on which he was standing fell with him, hurting his left foot which has been causing him considerable pain.

A local physician was summoned and later Mr. Henry was carried to Lufkin where an x-ray picture was made of the injured member, and from the picture it seems that a dislocated bone in the foot is causing the pain. Just whether the injury will quickly heal has not been determined, and the local physician says that it might be several weeks or months before Mr. Henry regains full strength of the foot.

R. E. HAND TO LIVE HERE AGAIN

The new residence building under construction just west of town on the highway, will be the future home of Mr. and Mrs. R E. Hand.

For the past number of years Mr Hand has been engaged in the oil business, mostly in Oklahoma, as a driller and otherwise. But now like everything else, the oil game has felt the depression, and now while Mr. Hand is idle he wants to live in the town of his first love—Huntington, which is a mighty good place, and where he was reared and has many friends, all of whom will be glad to learn of his return to live among them.

Jess McIntosh came in Wednesday morning after an absence from Huntington and vicinity for the past 42 days, the time being spent in the war veterans' hospital Muskogee, Okla., where he was given treatments for 40 days of the time. Jess, a world war veteran, has been in very bad health for several years, but he says the treatments helped him to some extent, but not as much as he had anticipated they would before hand. He gained only four pounds in weight, but he really looks improved. He has many friends in this vicinity who will be glad to see him again.

NEGRO FARMER MADE RICHER BY $925.00 IN GOLD

Rusk, Texas, March 17.—The depression ended for Emerson Polk, a negro tenant on the Louis Butler farm three miles west of Rusk, when he plowed up a jar of gold coins.

Hearing what he thought was breaking glass when his disc struck a rock, Emerson called his brother to bring a spade. Thus they unearthed a jar said to contain $925 in gold, most of it in $10 and $20 gold pieces.

Emerson used part of his treasure for making varied purchases, including a used car and left home.

V. C. Davis, owner and proprietor of the Huntington Garage on Main street and the Huntington Water Works, will in the future reside in a new location, he and Mrs. Davis moving Monday out to Mr. Davis's two story building in the highway section which has been vacant for the past year. The building has recently underwent a remodeling and painting from top to bottom inside and out. Besides living quarters, the building has several business departments, and just whether Mr. Davis will open a business of some kind we cannot say at the present.

Grady Lewis, who for the past few years has been employed by Mr. Davis to carry on the operation of his garage and filling station, moved Tuesday with his family into the residence vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Davis.

SYNOPSIS

Ragged and starving, a boy of about sixteen is found in the woods by a camping party. He has fled from his brutal father, Bat Morryson. Fed, and in clean clothes, the boy, Shad (Sheridan), is sent to Canton, with a letter to Colonel Blake. The colonel, his wife, and young daughter Ruth, are impressed by the boy's manner. He goes to work in the village of Amity Dam, and becomes friendly with a youth of his age, "Bony," and Bumpy Brown, tinker and village character. Bat Morryson tries to take his son back to his own dissolute life but is overawed by Colonel Blake, the district attorney, and his father passes out of Shad's life. Shad applies himself diligently to his neglected education. Love for Ruth Blake takes a strong hold on his heart. In an attack made on the Perry family, Oscar Perry, the father, is fatally shot, and his daughter, Mrs. Doolittle, wife of Cyrus Doolittle, prominent citizen, shot and seriously wounded. Circumstantial evidence points to Bumpy Brown as the assailant, and he is arrested. Shad loses his job, and goes to live with Bony. The two boys seek and find disguises the murderer had worn. Colonel Blake is almost convinced Bumpy Brown is not the murderer.

New clothes, shirts, collars, neckties, underclothing, a derby hat and a leather suitcase were carefully selected. When they left the store the colonel surveyed the boy with admiration.

"It is a perfect job," he said. "Send the bill to me."

They got new shoes at another store and went to a barber shop. There the colonel insisted that Shad have a trimming and a bath and fresh underclothing. When they entered the colonel's house about seven-thirty that evening Shad was stepping proudly. Mrs. Blake embraced him and said that he was handsomer than ever. The girl Ruth shook his hand.

"I am to be kind but dignified to you," she said with a smile.

"When I come again I think that I will wear green glasses," the boy answered.

"Why?"

"They will give you a kind of a sickly look and make it easy for me to behave."

The colonel and Mrs. Blake laughed, betraying a note of awareness.

The girl sat down and began to survey the boy. She was impressed by his grandeur. He thought that she was more beautiful than ever, and he was right.

"This boy has done important work in the case of the People against Brown," the colonel said to his wife. "He and a young friend have found the hat and handkerchief that covered the head and face of the murderer. He has discovered other convincing evidence. I am to try to make a lawyer of him. It ought to be easy. This young chap has almost convinced me that his friend Bumpy Brown is not the man we want."

He told his wife of Shad's finds and adventures.

Mrs. Brake embraced the boy and congratulated him.

"You really are getting along," she said.

The colonel was weary. He arose presently and suggested to his young friend that they go to bed. Shad arose and said good night. The girl gave him a pleasant smile as she answered. He thought that he saw a note of disappointment in her eyes. The girl went with him to the foot of the stairs and whispered with sweet encouragement in her eyes:

"How grand you look!"

He went upstairs with the colonel who showed him to his room.

He came downstairs at eight o'clock in the morning and Ruth met him in the hall and looked into his eyes with a sweet smile as she said:

"How lazy you are! I've been up an hour waiting for you."

He was happy as he stammered, rather awkwardly: "If—if I had known that I would have been up at daylight."

Ruth blushed, saying: "I have got to hurry away to school now."

It was not quite true but it was a part of the old strategy. She knew that it would pain him to see her go and there was a kind of joy in the thought of his bitter and devastating disappointment. So she left him. Before she had gone a block she pretended to have forgotten something and came back and shook hands again.

Shad went with the colonel to his office. That day the boy was comfortably settled in a furnished room. His wages were to be twenty-five dollars a month. He was to get his meals at a small restaurant. It was a speculation on the part of the generous lawyer—like that of putting a colt in a training stable. The boy was quick to learn. Moreover, he had a mind of his own, and agreeable manners.

The country was now at war with Spain. A messenger came one day from the War department to consult the colonel. It was then that Shad learned that Colonel Blake was an acknowledged authority in devising and reading cipher messages used in war.

Facts of vital interest were discovered regarding the weapon used in the killing of Oscar Perry. The brief of Colonel Blake submitted to the Appellate division of the Supreme court recites the testimony of Sergt. William E. Petty of New York, an expert on revolvers and ammunition, who examined the weapon. He weighed its bullets and counted their grooves.

He said: "This revolver was called in its time the American Bulldog Thirty-eight. It was manufactured by the Winchester Repeating Arms company. They ceased to make and sell it in 1890. The weapon has this peculiarity. When it is fired the trigger must be released—the trigger finger must cease to press it—before it is cocked for another discharge."

While the sergeant examined the bullets, Colonel Blake made a note of this illuminating fact.

"These cartridges were undoubtedly made for the Winchester-Colt revolver," the sergeant resumed. "They are thirty-eight caliber, long, central-fire cartridges, with a square base. The weight, the shape of the point, the form and faces of the cannelures leave no room for doubt."

Colonel Blake learned that the trade in northern New York bought their supplies of Winchester arms and ammunition from a store of the company in Utica.

On his return the colonel stopped at this store. Its record of sales for some years prior to 1890 were still on file. A bookkeeper was paid to make an immediate survey of those records and ascertain to what tradesmen in St. Lawrence county the American Bulldog revolver had been sold. His report was that only one revolver of that type had been sold in St. Lawrence county. It had been shipped in September, 1889, with three boxes of thirty-eight caliber, long, central-fire cartridges to fit it, to E. J. Bonfield, a hardware dealer of the village of Massena.

A little later Shad went with Colonel Blake to Massena. They learned that Mr. Bonfield had sold his stock and gone out of business in 1890. His goods had gone to some merchant in Norwalk. Shad and the district attorney drove to that small town, which was five miles from Ashfield. In the general store run by Cobb and Maxwell they found the long resting-place of the antiquated weapon which had killed Oscar Perry. Mr. Cobb had bought the revolver and its boxes of cartridges from Bonfield in 1889.

"To whom and when did you sell it?" the colonel asked.

Mr. Cobb answered: "We sold it cheap to old Bumpy Brown, the tinker. He said that he was getting it for another man who wanted to shoot some cats."

"This is important evidence. Why didn't you report it to me?" was the query of the district attorney.

"Well, I was in California when Bumpy was arrested. I didn't get back until a week ago. I thought that I'd wait and see what happened."

"Have you any idea or suspicion as to the last owner of this weapon?"

"No, sir, but I think that Brown told me the truth."

As Colonel Blake and his young clerk went to the hotel for supper the former said:

"This is a curious case. Again it comes up to Bumpy Brown. We'll know more of this matter before we sleep."

They returned to Canton by the evening train and drove directly to the jail. Bumpy was brought out to the sheriff's office to talk with them. He put his hands on Shad's shoulders and looked in his eyes and exclaimed:

"My boy! Don't you lose faith in me."

"Never," Shad answered.

The colonel spoke: "This boy had almost convinced me of your innocence until I learned today that a part of your testimony is false. You once owned a revolver."

Bumpy answered:

"No, I didn't. I bought a revolver one day at Cobb and Maxwell's in Norwalk, but I bought it for another man. I never owned it a minute. I took it to Robert Royce that day. He said that in travelin' around I might see a chance to buy a good revolver cheap. If I did, I was to git it for him. The island was overrun with cats. He wanted to shoot some of 'em. He give me exactly what the revolver an' ca'tridges cost. It was a five-dollar bill he give me. It had been tore in the middle an' pasted together. He said he had got it from Henry Lockwood that day an' that he'd guarantee it was good."

"Was anyone present when you delivered the revolver?"

"Not as I remember of, no sir. He was alone in the shop. He went upstairs an' got a present for me. It was a knit muffler with his initials wove into it. He said that he never used it."

"What did you do with that five-dollar bill that was torn in the middle?" Colonel Blake asked.

Bumpy Brown thought a moment.

"Well, sir, I might as well tell you—I give it to my wife to keep for me."

"Your wife!" the colonel exclaimed. "I thought that your wife had been dead for years."

"I don't blame ye fer thinkin' so," the old man went on. "I put her in her grave years ago, but she ain't dead, no, sir. She's up there in that little shack o' mine an' lookin' at me an' talkin' to me, just as she used to, every day I'm to home. I miss her awful when I'm away."

The old man paused and wiped his eyes with his handkerchief and continued:

"Ye see, I alwus used to give her the money to keep. We lived comf'table. I never got drunk them days—never. I done well. There on the wall she argued with me 'bout my foolishness an' I promised her that I wouldn't do it no more an' I agreed that I'd give her the money to save just as I used to. Now, what I say is private. I took down her pictur' off the wall an' morticed the back o' the frame an' put a slide over the mortice so neat ye couldn't see it. Every week I slipped some money into that hole in the frame. It was like givin' it to her to keep for me."

"I'll take you to Brown's cove tomorrow and we'll see if we can find that five-dollar bill."

"Well, sir, you'll find out that I ain't no liar," said Bumpy. "If I do any murderin' it must be that I do it in my sleep. I ain't never ketched myself in the act—not yet."

As Shad and Colonel Blake were leaving the jail the latter said: "It is almost clear to me that the old man has been the victim of a plot. I think that we shall soon be done with him save as a witness."

The sheriff drove out to Brown's cove next day with the district attorney and the tinker. They found the mended bill with other money in the hiding place Bumpy had described. Henry Lockwood was at his farm near the cove. He identified the five-dollar bill in question. He gave it to Royce in paying a bill and guaranteed its validity. In doing so he had made a note in his memorandum book of its number. The identification was perfect.

As they left Lockwood's house the district attorney said to the old man:

"It does look as if your wife was still alive. I think that she is going to get you out of this scrape."

"Oh, she—she's a wonderful woman!" said the tinker. "I could always count on her in the day o' need."

Colonel Blake's mind was nearing its decision. The tan suit, the motive, the possession of the revolver and the rubbers seemed clearly to indicate the guilt of Royce.

Monument Records Deed of Cross-Eyed Heroine

A cross-eyed woman has been honored by a monument at Hartwell, Ga.

Nancy Hart, whose memory is thus preserved, and her husband built a cabin in the hills, and were rearing a family when the Revolutionary war broke out.

While the men were away five redcoats surprised Nancy and a little girl in the cabin and ordered the woman to prepare a meal for them. Nancy, watching for an opportunity, grabbed one of the muskets and killed one of the soldiers. She then seized another gun and threatened to shoot any of the four that made resistance.

Because of her crossed eyes, none of King George's men could tell which one Nancy was looking at, so they all stood still until the men came back to see what all the shooting was for, and hanged the four soldiers. Subsequently the town of Hartwell and Hart county, of which it is the county seat, were named for the cross-eyed heroine.

Congress voted a fund for the erection of a monument to Nancy Hart.

ARABS LIBERAL IN IDEAS OF DIVORCE

Simple Formula, With a Gift, Severs the Tie.

In the Oara mountains of southern Arabia divorce is supremely easy for the man, as throughout all Arabia. He has only to tire of his wife and say so in the usual formula and she must go home to her father, with a parting gift of half a cow. Divorce by the woman is also easy, though financially more onerous, for she must return to him half the marriage price, which may amount to ten cows, Both are immediately free to marry again. Divorce does not require a qadhi's sanction, so marriage and divorces are frequent. If a wife has borne her husband children, he is usually unwilling to divorce her, but when he marries again, inevitably a young girl, it is customary for him to pacify the older woman with a gift equivalent to the new bride's marriage price. Thus women acquire wealth; indeed the independent possession of property by man and wife is regarded in a favorable light.

"How many children have you got, Instahail?" I asked of one of my Oara escorts.

"Three," he said, "a girl and two boys."

"From the same wife?"

"No, the girl is old and is the woman of Fadhlallah here. Her mother I divorced."

"Why?" I asked.

"She bore me nothing (that is, no sons). But is was she who asked for the divorce."

"And did you claim half your gallap (wedding price) back?

"More, I gave six cows for her, and demanded and got eight for her divorce."

He laughed. "Wallahi! I was a fool, for she married Bir Zaid and bore him four sons."—From "Arabia Felix," by Bertram Thomas.

All-Conquering Motor to Supersede Railway?

Can old railway tracks, no longer required for their original purpose, be made useful once more?

This is a question which railway engineers often ask; and as old branch lines close down owing to lack of traffic it becomes a very practical one.

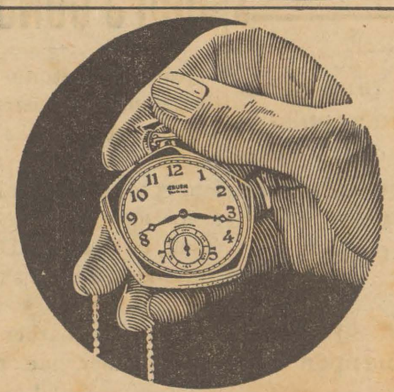

An answer to it has been found in the United States, where experts are advocating that obsolescent railway tracks should be converted into roads for heavy motor traffic. They say that the cost of transforming an old railway line into a modern road would be less than a third that of constructing an entirely new highway. The state would therefore be able to buy disused tracks from the railway companies at quite a substantial figure and still show a profit.

The value of the idea, of course, depends on whether or not new roads are needed. If and where they are the scheme has possibilities.—London Answers.

MAKES WOMEN LOSE FAT

Miss Rea M. Haines of Dayton, Ohio writes: "I weighed 180 so started to take Kruschen. I never was so surprised as when I weighed myself the first week—I lost 7 pounds. I just bought my 3rd jar and am down to 145—am still taking them and never felt better in my life." (June 17, 1932).

To take off fat—take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—one bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a few cents—get it at any drugstore in America. If this first bottle fails to convince you this is the SAFE and harmless way to lose fat—your money gladly returned.

But be sure and get Kruschen Salts—imitations are numerous and you must safeguard your health.

Lesson for March 19

THE EFFECTS OF ALCOHOLIC DRINKS

LESSON TEXT—Proverbs 23:29-32; Isaiah 28:1-4; Daniel 5:1-4.

GOLDEN TEXT—At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder. Proverbs 23:32.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The House I Live In.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Boy Who Ruled Himself.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Dangerous Enemy.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Curse of Intemperance.

I. The Effect of Alcohol Upon the Individual (Prov. 23:29-32).

1. Woes of those who indulge in wine (vv. 29, 30). No more graphic description of the evils of the wine-bibber has ever been given. It portrays in the most impressive manner the miseries that mark the drunkard's life. There are six of them.

a. Awful pain, causing them to cry out.

b. Bitter remorse. Many are the expressions of bitter regret upon the lips of the drunkard.

c. Strife and quarreling. The drunken man is always ready for a fight. He takes offense as well as gives it.

d. Complaining. The winebibber complains of everything, ill luck, broken fortune, ruined health, loss of friends, and even of God.

e. Wounds without cause. He has many wounds which might have been avoided—from fights in which a sober man would not have been engaged and from accidents which result from intoxication.

f. Redness of eyes, the bloodshot eyes of the tippler.

2. The drunkard's bitter end (vv. 32-35).

a. Acute miseries (v. 32.) "It biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder." Strong drink, like the poison of the serpent, permeates the whole being, causing suffering and death.

b. Perversion of the moral senses (v. 33.) This excitement causes the eyes to behold strange things, fantastic images which are produced on the brain of the drunkard. The heart also utters perverse things.

c. He is insensible to danger. The drunkard is foolhardy in his acts.

d. He is insensible to pain (v. 35). He has many bruises and wounds for which he cannot account.

e. He is in abject bondage (v. 35). He is a bond slave to the ways of sin.

f. Hell at last, for no drunkard shall enter the kingdom of heaven (I Cor. 6:10).

3. The attitude enjoined (v. 31). It is "look not at it." Total abstinence is the only safe attitude toward strong drink.

II. Effect of Alcohol Upon the Nation (Isa. 28:1-4).

Just as indulgence in intoxicating drinks brings ruin to the individual, so it destroys the nation. God pronounced judgment upon Israel because of the sin of drunkenness (v. 1). Samaria was the capital city, therefore stands for the nation. Drunkenness seems to have been a national sin at this time (Isa. 5:11, 12; 7:5; Amos 2:6, 8, 12; 4:1; 6:6). Samaria's position was an enviable one; the whole nation was proud of her. The crown of pride whose beauty had been so marked was now fading through the blighting effects of drunkenness. Even as ruin came upon Israel, so will God visit judgment upon America for its drunkenness. The instrument by which the punishment of Israel was effected was the Assyrian (v. 2). The imagery of this verse shows that destruction was sudden, swift, and irresistible.

III. The Effect of Alcohol Upon National Rulers (Daniel 5:1-4).

Belshazzar's impious feast is an outstanding example of the effect of alcohol upon rulers. Note—

1. The attendants at the feast (vv. 1, 2): There were present Belshazzar the king, his wife and concubines, and a thousand of his lords.

2. Their behavior (vv. 3, 4).

a. They drank wine.

b. They committed sacrilege. They drank wine out of sacred vessels which had been taken out of the Temple, the house of God at Jerusalem.

c. They worshiped idols. They prayed to gods of gold and silver, of brass, or iron, wood, and stone, and challenged the rule of the living God. With the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment will come not only national disgrace but the loss of that high standard which has as a rule characterized American rulership from the President to the humblest civil officer. One shrinks from the contemplation of what awaits our nation in its determination to legalize the intoxicating cup.

Our Government —How It Operates

By William Bruckart

TREATY NEGOTIATIONS

THE United States and Canada have just lately concluded a treaty that represents an agreement between our government and that of our neighbor on the north whereby a deep waterway will be constructed connecting the Great Lakes and the Atlantic ocean. It is a gigantic engineering project that is contemplated; it has vast potentialities for our people and their commerce, and it will stand through the years as a monument to the genius of two peoples who desire to see opportunities utilized for the good of all.

But behind the formal signing of that treaty which took place in the Department of State here in the Capital city lies many ramifications and maneuvers. They are called "negotiations" at the end, and they represent as well as any in history the processes through which nations must go in reaching agreement on the terms of a contract, for a treaty, after all, is only a contract. Treaty negotiations, however, are not unlike swapping of horses in the old days. It is a matter of give and take, and each fellow looks out for himself.

It seldom takes as much time to accomplish an understanding respecting treaty terms as has elapsed since the deep waterway proposal first was advanced more than fifty years ago. Commercial interests saw the need of it long before our government could be interested in the project. The same was true among the Canadians, except that they did not regard development of the waterway as important until recent years because their commerce began expanding later than ours.

Yet through all of those years, two peoples were slowly but surely moving to the point where their governments could agree as to what was necessary in a treaty under which the channel could be constructed. There had to be a treaty, of course, because the rights of each nation were involved and each nation had to give up some of those rights when the contract was made.

Active movements by our government, looking to the treaty and the waterway project to be built under its terms, were instituted almost ten years ago. At that time, however, some of the statesmen at the head of the Dominion government were not friendly to the idea. There was opposition as well among certain interests in this country. For example, many of the railroads serving the northern half of the United States and drawing traffic from the regions around and west of the Great Lakes are opposed to the waterway for the very obvious reason that they fear it will take away some of their traffic. And so it goes. Opposition and support for the plan may be found everywhere in areas affected by it.

From this it is easily deduced that a considerable amount of preliminary work had to be done to acquaint the peoples of the merit of the project.

It has now been formally signed because the ruling political group in Canada believe it is practicable and valuable, and the administration of our government has fostered the idea throughout.

But the treaty is not yet operative. It has another stage to pass here and another at Ottawa. While its acceptance by the Dominion government is little more than a formality, ratification of the agreement by the senate of the United States is another matter. The Constitution provides for negotiation of the treaty by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the senate. So it has to take a hurdle of some consquence before it becomes a binding agreement and one that is fully operative.

When the President transmits the St. Lawrence waterway treaty to the senate for its consideration, he will send with it a letter from the secretary of state explaining the benefits hoped to be derived. But the senate will not be content with that. It will turn the treaty over to its committee on foreign relations, and that group will hold hearings to which it will invite spokesmen for the various groups interested in its ratification or rejection. It will listen to both sides.

In addition, it will invite the secretary of state and the American minister to Ottawa and experts who participated in the actual writing of the document to come before it and tell what the treaty does. These men probably will testify in private, however, for it must be remembered that all international negotiations are carried on largely in secrecy. That is necessary because it is frequently inadvisable to make public the basis of horse swapping. Some people will think their government gave too much and they will complain.

If a majority of the committee favor ratification, they will vote to submit it to the senate with that recommendation, and eventually action is had there, leaving then only the act of notifying the other government, to be performed.

In outlining the course of the waterway treaty, I have attempted to picture the usual processes. They are much the same in all treaties, excepting those ending a war. With that kind of a treaty, it is unnecessary to deal, for the victor dictates the terms and the loser signs.

Italy Makes Progress in Educational Reform

The educational reforms introduced by the Fascist government during the ten years of its existence are far-reaching. It is enough to read the history of Italy since 1815 to regard with intense sympathy her struggle for nationhood, writes Howard R. Marraro in Current History.

After fighting for the right to become a united nation for more than fifty years she began her effort to build a nation from a heterogeneous population that was more than 75 per cent illiterate, with no money, no industry, no railroads and very limited natural resources. In spite of the shock of the World war and the series of economic and social disturbances which followed, the Italians have reduced illiteracy to 21 per cent, and they have created a school system which endows the new generation with energy of thought and will, and seeks to develop a culture that truly represents the manifold powers of the Italian race.

Because Fascism exalts and enobles those qualities which assure the greatness of Italy, and since the problem of greatness is above all a problem of education and culture, Mussolini has rightly defined Gentile's educational reforms as "the most Fascist of all the Fascist reforms."

. . . AND ANOTHER WOMAN CHANGES TO CALUMET!

● When a woman has a reputation for making really lovely cakes and delectable biscuits and muffins . . . don't you think she is foolish to risk it—just for the sake of saving a tiny fraction of the cost of her baking when she buys baking powder?

For, of course—economy at the store is only a small part of true economy. Calumet's glorious results give you satisfaction that can't be measured in pennies.

It's a joy to know when you slip your pans in the oven that Calumet's scientifically controlled Double-Action will protect your baking. Because, you know, it acts twice. The first action begins in the mixing bowl, but the second is held in reserve to act in the heat of the oven, and that's what holds your batter or dough so high and light all the time it's baking.

CREAM LOAF CAKE
(2 eggs)

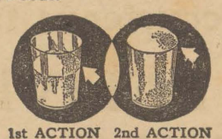

2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour	½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder	1 cup sugar
	2 eggs, well beaten
	1¼ cups heavy cream
	1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Add sugar gradually to eggs, and beat well. Add flour, alternately with cream, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in greased pan, 8 x 8 x 2 inches, in moderate oven (350° F.) 50 minutes. Spread chocolate frosting on top and sides of cake.

• • •

Then, too, Calumet gives you another true economy: you use less, because Calumet goes further. Only one teaspoon to a cup of sifted flour—that's the thrifty standard proportion with Calumet.

Try Calumet in this delicious Cream Loaf Cake. Then you'll see why reasonably-priced Calumet is the best baking powder value! Calumet is a product of General Foods.

1st ACTION 2nd ACTION

GET PROOF! See Calumet act twice! These pictures illustrate the famous Calumet Double-Action Test. You'll find full directions for making this easy test inside every Calumet can. Try it! See for yourself how Calumet acts twice to make your baking better.

CALUMET  THE DOUBLE-ACTING BAKING POWDER •

LESS THAN A PENNY'S WORTH IN A CAKE BUT my! THE DIFFERENCE IT MAKES IN YOUR BAKING!

Thousands Find Health In Amazing Mineral Compound

New Scientific Formula Containing Essential Elements of Human Body, Combined with Necessary Vitamins, Brings Radiant Health to Many Who Had Given Up Hope of Ever Being Well Again.

People in All Walks of Life Tell of Its Powers. Many Declare Lee's Mineral Compound Has Brought Them Health, Strength and Vigor After Many Medicines Had Failed Completely.

You who are blue, downcast and depressed over your loss of health. You who have tried many medicines and treatments with little or no relief—take new heart and cheer! Prepare yourselves for the most joyous surprise of your lives.

Throw away your "patent" medicines, pills and drastic laxatives Give Nature a chance! Feed your body with the essential Minerals and Vitamins that God intended you should have and see how quickly Nature asserts herself and charges your body with renewed health, strength and vitality.

BODY DEMANDS MINERALS

Medical Science has discovered that the human body is made up of a very limited number of essential elements. All of these are found in the Mineral kingdom and in foods in their natural state. To be exact, the healthy human body is composed of eleven Minerals and when these are present, in balanced proportion, we enjoy good health.

Unfortunately, few of us give any thought to balancing our diets, according to their Mineral content, and therefore we must pay the penalty. A deficiency of these elements brings on Indigestion, Gas, Bloating, Constipation, Headaches, Nervousness and a host of other ills. We soon lose strength, go from bad to worse and become disgusted with life itself.

NEW WAY TO HEALTH

For many long years, Physicians and Chemists have been trying to combine, in proper proportion, the eleven essential Minerals with necessary Vitamins. They realized that the preparation must be easily assimilated and supply the system with these elements so necessary to health.

Fortunately, for all mankind, this tremendous undertaking has met with success! Science has perfected a most remarkable formula, known as LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND. This preparation supplies the system with the eleven essential Minerals, in combination with Vitamins. It is not, in any sense of the word, a "patent" medicine but is more in the nature of a FOOD VITALIZER. It assists Nature by restoring a proper balance of the Mineral Content of the body and good health follows as a natural result.

MAKE THIS 10 DAY TEST
Convince Yourself!

Stop dosing yourself with "patent medicines," harsh purgatives, oils and cathartics for just 10 days. Go to your nearest Druggist and secure a bottle of LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND. Take it regularly, and watch the results. You'll be amazed at the feeling of renewed strength and vigor that soon appears. No narcotics or alcohol to "boost you up" but a natural method of restoring health and energy.

LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND with Vitamins

Supplies the System with a Balanced Proportion of the 11 Essential Minerals Combined with Vitamins.
