FOREWORD

Life at Central is not entirely composed of studies and extracurricular activities; there are certain intangible ingredients that can be defined only by a Centralite. The mad scramble at the candy machine during lunchtime, the horror of seeing his books fly everywhere as he walks down the hall, the hushed reverence during the singing of the school song--in a Centralite's memory these small occurrences are mixed with the more significant events into a maze of happenings we call school life.

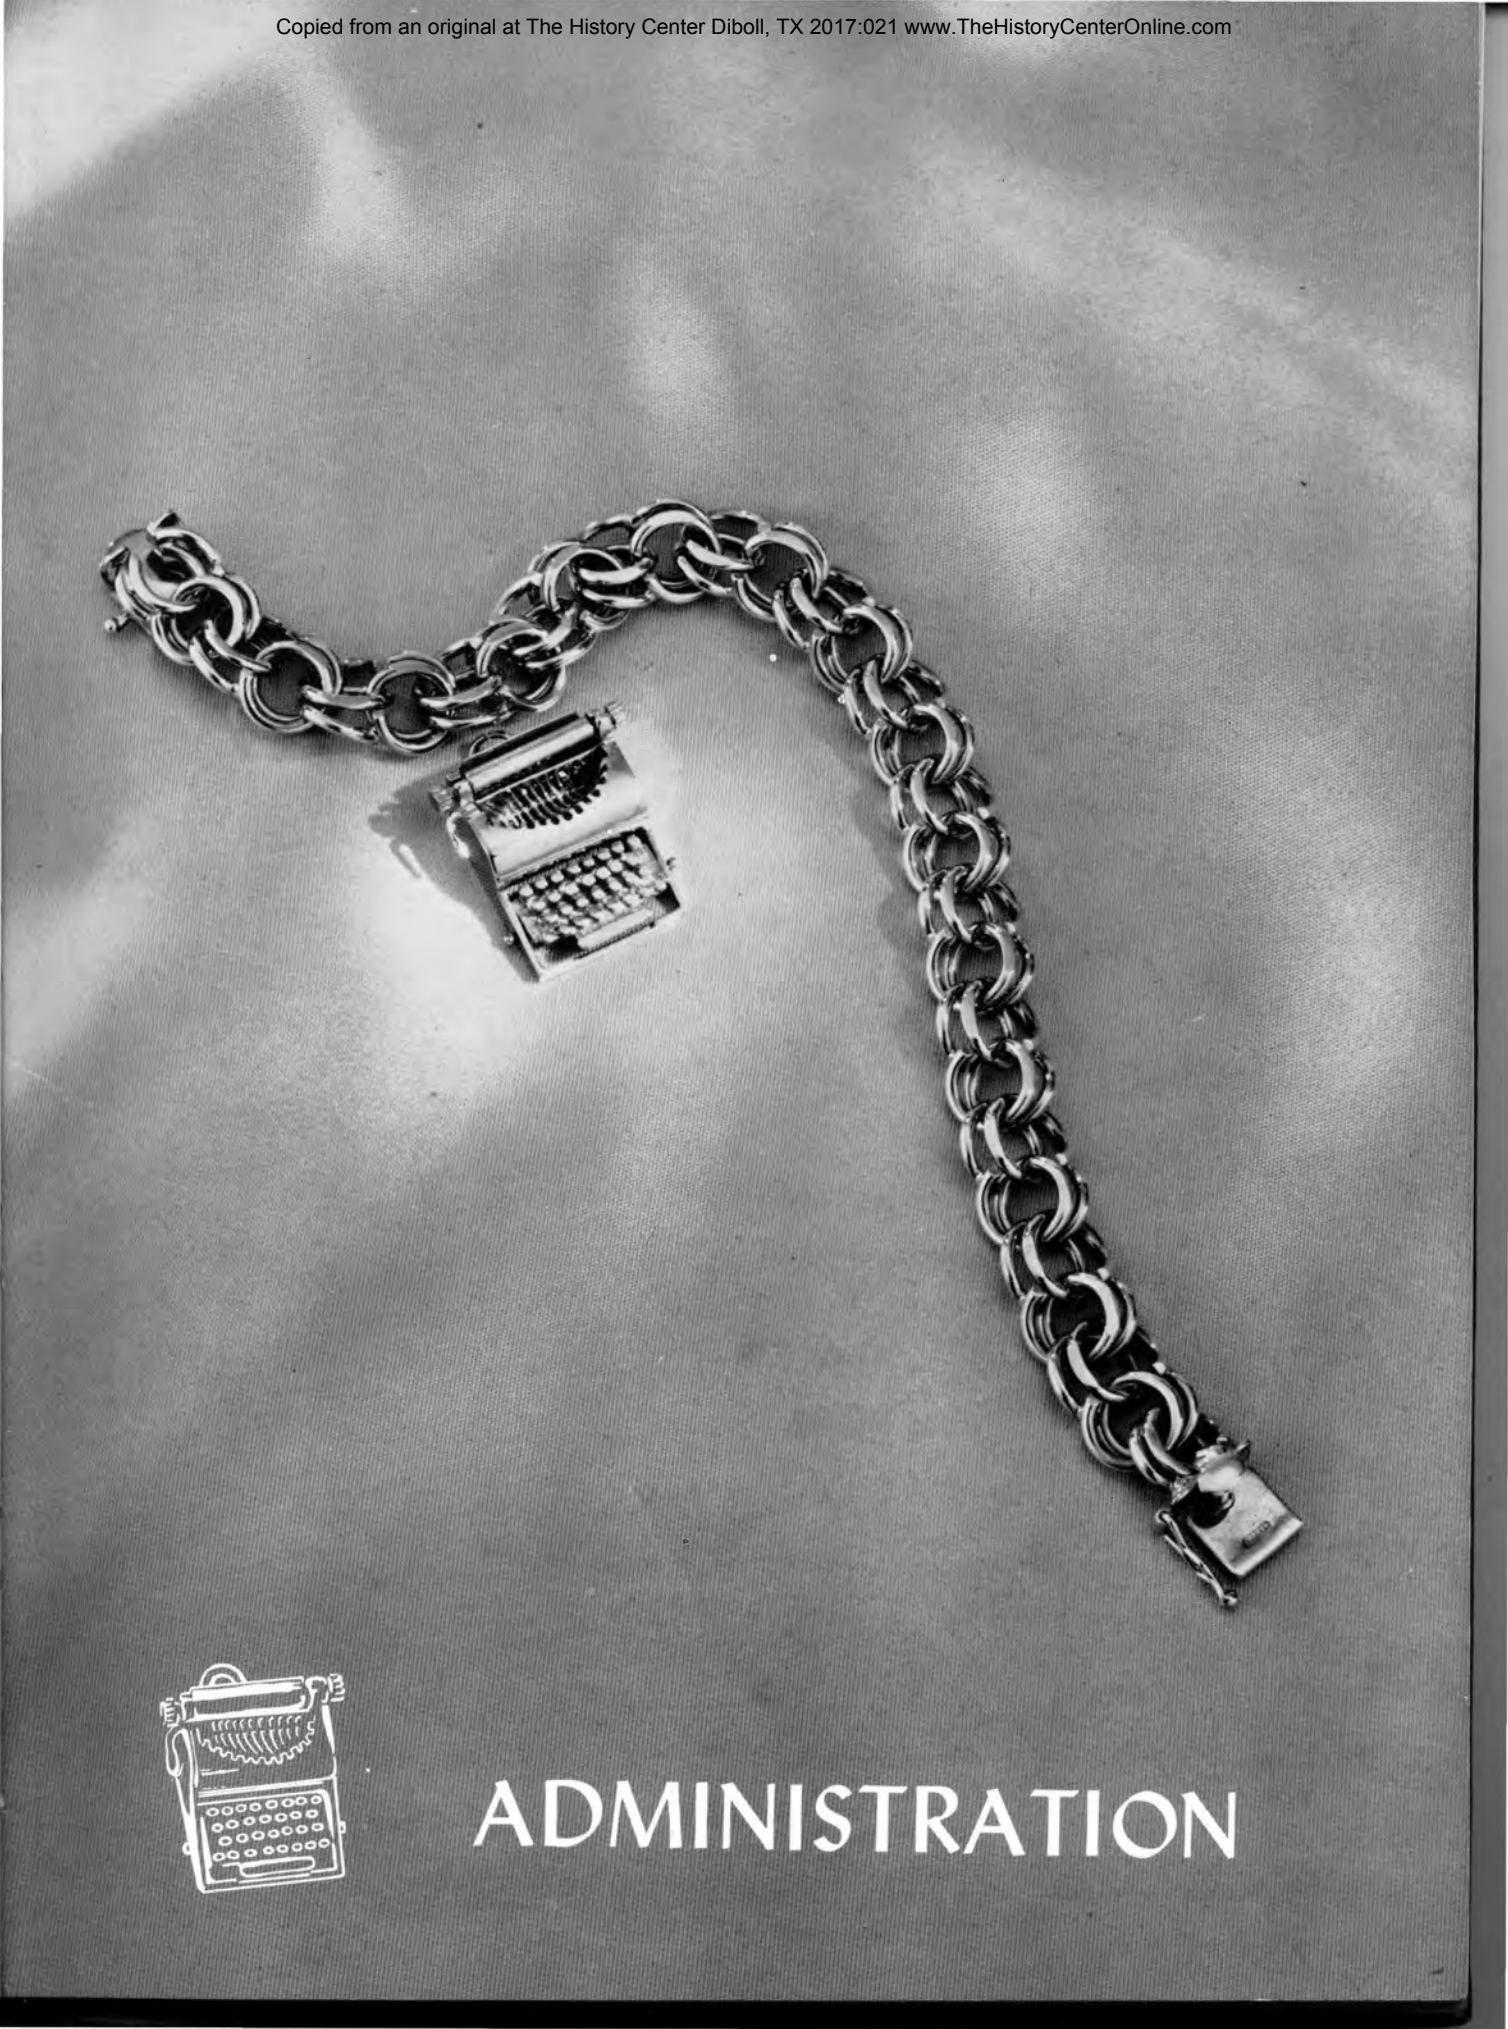

Although the events of 1965-66 are now past history, they will become an integral part of the memories of Central High School.
