Market News from Southern Pine

"Sale of Temple Seats have been slightly lower this week than last. We expect them to pick up considerably in the next couple of weeks."

Don H. Burnley
Asst. General Sales Manager

"The sale of SPIB 77 lumber products continues to be brisk in No. 2 and No. 3 Common grades with slightly more activity in No. 1 Common and Better grades. It will be necessary for us to move our No. 1 Common and Better grades if we are to increase the volume of our sales as our entire production of the lower grades is selling readily."

"The sale of SP Supreme Oak Flooring contines at a satisfactory rate and it is our hope that we will begin to move a greater quantity of Select and Clear Oak Flooring before very long."

Bob Burns
Asst. General Sales Manager

There has not been much change in the furniture dimension market since last week, and we are still running on a normal forty-hour basis with a normal order file. However, we are getting considerable inquiries and expect to improve our order file within the next 30 days.

Temple Precision Wood Parts
Carl H. Sanders

Orders for Southern Pine Lumber Company Templetreat products came in at a much better rate during the week of August 18 than they had in many weeks. Inquiries for poles and piling were more numerous. Should inquiries and orders stay on the same level for the forthcoming weeks then the market for our Templetreat products should improve.

Hardwood orders continue to come in in a satisfactory manner and this market continues active and firm.

Asst. General Sales Manager

Booster Club Meets Thursday For Business

The Pineland Booster Club met last Thursday night at the Hi-Way Cafe for its monthly business meeting, with Mr. M. M. Miller, school superintendent as speaker for the evening.

Mr. Miller discussed the forthcoming year's budget and finances for Pineland Independent School District.

Comparing the one dollar per hundred dollar tax evaluation in our school district with $1.50 per hundred dollar evaluation in all surrounding districts, Mr. Miller stressed the vital necessity of equal tax evaluation in our town if our school is to maintain or better its present standard.

The Churches, the School, and the Businesses form the foundation of our community life, Mr. Miller stated. Only the full cooperation of all, and the support of all by the people will assure our community of progress comparable to the progress of surrounding communities, he said.

Further business considered at the meeting was the probable advisability of a Retail Merchants Credit Association for Pineland.

PHS Board Meets In Regular Session

The Board of Trustees, Pineland Independent School District, met in regular session Monday night at the school building.

Business transacted included the setting of the rate for student lunches at 25c, a 5c increase over last year, made necessary by the rising cost of food. The 25c rate will be enforced until such time as the cost of the program necessitates further increase.

Graduation requirements were discussed and credit for Physical Education was authorized by the board. Beginning with the school year of 1959-60, eighteen credits will be required for graduation, instead of the sixteen credits required in the past. Increased credits are necessary to meet state requirements, Mr. Miller, superintendent, stated.

The Equalization Board met with the Board of Trustees to discuss tax re-evaluation of the district, and the need for more local finances. The District has been operating on a $1.00 per $100 valuation local tax rate. The Board expressed a need of increasing the local tax rate from $1.00 per hundred dollar valuation to $1.50 per one hundred dollars since the increase in operating costs the last few years place such a heavy burden on the local district.

Mr. Miller pointed out that most all school districts in this area have a $1.50 tax rate. The increase in local rates would mean a better school for the boys and girls. The Board members expressed the hope that "all citizens interested in the education of our children familiarize themselves with the needs of our school."

Bread 'n Butter

BY LATANE' TEMPLE

Last week industry affairs took me all the way to San Francisco. The new 35-man Committee of National Lumber Manufacturers Association met to plan in detail the spending of upwards of one million dollars on a new National Wood Promotion Program.

This program is something that has never been done before. To agree upon it required the setting aside of difference among the different regions of the nation where lumber is manufactured.

The West Coast Lumbermen's Association, whose members produce fir, hemlock, spruce and some other types; Western Pine Association, who produce mostly white pine ;and Southern Pine Association, who produce dry southern pine, are the three main groups.

The rivalry among these groups has been keen and sometimes bitter through the years, particularly between WCLA and SPA and our differences stem mainly from the argument about whether or not all lumber should be dried.

While we have fought among ourselves, inferior substitutees have walked in and started taking our markets.

Isn't there a fable about two dogs who fought over a bone and while they were fighting a fox took it?

Well, the fox is about to take our bone and we have finally decided to try to do something about it.

The program provides for advertising in Life Magazine, all kinds of special reading material and mailings, work with architects and students, talking to people in government who deal with building codes, work on discriminatory insurance rates and so forth.

If this program succeeds, the livelihood of all of us here in East Texas will be more secure. The trade at our stores, our jobs and our savings will all be safer.

That's our bread and butter.

It would be good to be able to say that the differences between the regions representing different species had been overcome, but we cannot do so yet.

The southern pine producers in Southern Pine Association will not budge from the position that lumber should be dry.

However, we are a whole lot closer than we have ever been to understanding one another's point of view.

Jack Fairhurst, president of West Coast Lumbermen's Association showed me around San Francisco in his car and we had a good chance to visit. He is a fair-minded, superior person who is sincerely seeking a basis for strengthening the cause of lumber against substitutes.

So are Elliott Jenkins, president of The Booth-Kelly Lumber Company in Springfield, Oregon, and Henry Baker, of Simpson Timber Company in Seattle, Washington, with whom I have the honor to serve on a special nine-man Steering Committee which does the work of the 35-man Committee when it is not in session.

Jenkins and Bacon are West Coast lumbermen. Jim Bronson, Harold Ford and Bristow Hood represent western pine. Russell Ellis is redwood. Lee Robinson is southern hardwood. Bob Dosker is hardwood dimension (wood parts). I am the member from the southern pine region.

One evening during the meeting in San Francisco Mr. and Mrs. Fairhurst had a reception for the members of the committee. We went on a chartered bus. When we passed the richest residential section in the whole area, I got the driver to announce that all the houses there were built of southern pine.

This was like dropping a firecracker behind the enemy lines. Everyone enjoyed the joke.

Unfortunately it wouldn't have been a joke in, say, Houston where so much out-of-state, out-of-region lumber is used. But that's another story.

One of the high points of this trip to San Francisco, even though it was a business trip, was a night ball game between the San Francisco Giants and the St. Louis Cardinals. Unfortunately it was a somewhat sloppy game and neither Stan Musial nor Willie Mays got a hit. The Cards held in the clinches and the Giants bobbled so the Cards pushed the Giants a little bit fartner down the line in their race to challenge Milwaukee. The next day I was given some box seats and held them very carefully while I made plans to see a second game Wednesday night. While I was talking about it at a late lunch on Wednesday someone called my attention to the fact that a ball game was being broadcast. You guessed it. The tickets were for an afternoon ball game and there I sat.

Advances Made In Wood Study

Several years ago, technicians of the U. S. Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wisconson, performed what then seemed to be a routine experiment.

However the simple procedure produced some astonishing results. In fact, they provided a broad new base for all of the great advances in wood technology during recent years.

Before their experiment, the U. S. technicians knew that the process of seasoning (air or kiln drying) had a salubrious effect on the performance of lumber. By further testing, they hoped to determine the specific impact of low moisture content on wood strength and durability.

When the tests were completed and the results tabulated, an amazing story began to unfold. Their "guinea pig" had been Southern Pine, the strongest of structural woods in its rough unseasoned state. After thorough drying, the following increases were noted in the potent natural strength properties of this species:

Bending strength, 75 percent; vertical strength, 106 percent; stiffness, 27 percent; and hardness, 57 percent.

In a separate report, the federal agency said a state of dryness was also the best of permanence in wood.

These twin advantages of "dry" lumber: 1) uniformly higher strength and 2) permanence, are factors underlying the improved and expanded lumber usage today.

Proper seasoning has been of immense value in the conversion of lumber into an engineering material for the home, as well as the church, the school and all types of big buildings.

It has helped the engineers and architects fully capitalize on the high-strength for light weight factor of wood in stripping down and streamlining their basic structural forms. And it helps explain why modern engineered lumber design stresses the use of fewer members to do bigger jobs.

Knowledge of the virtues of "dry" lumber has also contributed to the comfort and security of millions of U. S. home owners. Lumber builds the most important part of the house, its structure, and well-seasoned wood gives it added strength and weather-tightness. Good construction practices assure a constant state of dryness after the lumber is installed. This, in turn, provides a permanent building whose future maintenance will be low.

So important is the process of seasoning that the standard grading rules for Southern Pine lumber provide specific moisture content restrictions on lumber of the type used for house framing. When this species is grade-marked, and thus certified as to grade, the user is assured the lumber is properly seasoned.

Miss Hall Becomes Bride of Aubrey Capelan

Of interest in this area where the bride is the granddaughter of Mr. W. C. Conner, the late Mrs. Nora Conner and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hall is the announcement of the marriage of Wanda Annette Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Willie Hall of Shreveport, Louisiana, and Aubrey Jack Capelan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blum Capelan, of Shreveport, which took place Friday, August 22, at the Lakeshore Baptist Church of Shreveport with Rev. C. S. McIlveene officiating at the double-ring ceremony.

The couple exchanged vows at the altar under an archway decorated with greenery and white carnations. Baskets of white gladioli with the soft light of many white tapers in graduated candlelabra illuminated the scene. The candles were lighted prior to the entrance of the bridal party by Jim Bice and Buddy Miller.

Mrs. Ray Leach, organist, and Miss Joan Davis, soloist, provided a program of wedding music.

The bride was preceded to the altar by her attendants who were Miss Rose Escott, Maid of Honor, and Miss Barbara Frazier, Miss Connie Spann, Miss Carolyn Arnold and Mrs. Nelda Neuman, bridesmaids. The Honor Attendant and bridesmaids wore identical waltz length dresses of jonquil yellow lace over taffeta, designed with fitted bodice and low rounded neckline, bound in satin and repeated on the brief sleeves.

The bouffant skirt of lace fell in graceful fullness over Crinolines. Matching shoes and veils were worn. Little Miss Debra Hollis was Flower Girl wearing an ankle length dress of jonquil yellow over taffeta. She carried a yellow net basket. The honor attendant carried a cascade of yellow carnations and centered with stephanotis, same as the bride. The bridesmaids carried cascades of yellow carnations.

The groomsmen were John Rabb, Maurice Brownell, George McLendon and Frank Hudson.

The bride was escorted by her father to the archway where the bridegroom and Calvin Gleason, who served him as best man, were waiting.

The bride was lovely in a chapel length gown of imported silk tulle and French applique shadow lace, over taffeta, designed with closely fitted bodice deeply pointed at the waistline and enhanced with deep lace scallops in shadow applique around the low neckline, repeating the motif on the brief sleeves. The magnificent fullness of the skirt worn over crinolines swept into a graceful chapel train. Her finger tip veil of bridal illusion fell in misty tiers from a small pearl and sequin hat. She carried a cascade bouquet of stephanotis and a white orchid with puffs of molin and satin bride streamers.

Reception

A reception followed in the church parlors, with the parents of the bride acting as hosts.

Standing to receive with the newly-married couple were their mothers, Mrs. Hall wearing a powder blue lace dress with matching hat and slippers and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Capelan was wearing a rose-beige lace dress with matching hat and slippers and also wearing an orchid.

Guests were invited to register in the bride's book by Miss Judy Morgan and were served by Mrs. Sarah Pitt and Miss Lynna Hubley.

The refreshment table was covered with ivory satin cloth and held at opposite ends the punch bowl and a three tiered wedding cake. The centerpiece was the bride's bouquet. Baskets of white gladioli were placed near the table.

½ cup friendship
Add a cup of thoughtfulness
Cream together with a pinch of powdered tenderness
Very lightly beaten in a Bowl of loyalty
With one cup of faith
One cup of hope
And one of charity
Be sure to add a spoonful each
Of gaiety that sings
And also the ability to laugh
At little things.
Moisten with the sudden tears
Of heartfelt sympathy
Bake in a good-natured pan

The Sabine County Singing Convention and Homecoming wa sa great success. We had one of the largest crowds we have ever had at this place and one of the biggest dinners. Thanks to all the people from other places who came and brought food for such a great feast.

Bro. M. W. Westbrooks is holding a revival here this week. The public is invited to attend.

Thanks to Mrs. E. J. Quick for the beautiful congratulatory cake she made and presented to the church. It was an exact replica of the new church in miniature, set on a larger base of cake and decorated in pastel green with the words, "Congratulations on your new church" written across the front in a deeper shade of the same color. It was most certainly a masterpiece of the culinary art, and was viewed by many people at the homecoming dinner last Sunday.
