The Pineland Star

DEDICATED TO THE PROGRESS OF PINELAND AND SURROUNDING COMMUNITIES

VOLUME 1—NUMBER 26 | THE PINELAND STAR, PINELAND, TEXAS, THURSDAY, OCT. 16, 1958 | $2.00 PER YEAR

Market News from Southern Pine

Temple seat sales this week have continued to be well over our plant production. This good volume has been the result of vastly improved quality and packaging, along with a more aggressive selling policy.

Although our volume is good the price of seats has continued to decline.

It is hoped that the increased residential building next year will give a better tone to the seat market.

---Don H. Burnley

Sales of SPIB 77 lumber products have not been as active in the first 10 days of October as they were during the first 10 days of September. This does not mean that business has fallen off remarkably. Frankly, we have not been in a position to accept many of the orders offered as we could not meet the delivery dates required. Our volume of sales of SPIB 77 products is satisfactory and shipments will depend entirely upon the rate of accumulation of items of which we are now oversold.

Southern Pine Supreme Oak Flooring sales are down considerably, but we have made no effort to increase our volume of sales by continuing to oversell No. 2 and No. 1 Common items, nor by drastically reducing our price on Clear and Select items. It is our hope that a flooring shortage will develop during the winter months for lack of seasoned flooring oak and that we will be in a position to take advantage of that market. We will begin to develop a larger volume of sales before the month is out.

---R. M. Burns

Temple treat sales were not too brisk for the week of Oct. 6. Orders received were just slightly above capacity to process and pressure treat. While we did not build up our back log orders, we did not reduce it. Generally speaking our Temple treat business is good.

Hardwood orders came in at a very slow rate this week, principally because we did not have dry lumber to offer the trade. There were a number of inquiries on which we were unable to quote. Hardwood prices continue firm, and the demand for dry hardwood exceeds supply.

Star Gazing

BY CHARLOTTE SMITH

Human-like, the things we take for granted are the things we shouldn't. And, too often we don't appreciate the taken-for-granteds.

I refer in this instance to our highway patrolmen in Pineland. For a town of our size we are not only fortunate to have the patrolmen, we are unique.

Prior to June 1, 1956, when the Department of Public Safety first sent patrolmen to Pineland, the terrible traffic accidents in our area presented a grave problem. Within one year, there were nine fatalities from car wrecks in the Sabine-San Augustine County vicinity.

From Jasper, the highways patrolled were to the south. From Center, the patrol extended northward. The area between was left unsupervised and the result was becoming more tragic as the death toll mounted.

Pineland was chosen as a patrol station because of its location, a direct center on the highway from San Augustine to Jasper.

Citizens of Kirbyville, because of their heavy traffic accident death toll this year, have petitioned the Department of Public Safety to send highway patrolmen to their town. I hope the petition is successful.

During their two years here, the record of decidedly fewer highway accidents and these of such diminished severity, proves forcibly the patrol's worth.

John Odom arrived in Pineland in June, 1956. Fred Davis was here, and when he was transferred J. C. Coker took his place. At present, George Clark, who followed Coker, works with Patrolman Odom.

"The Legislature makes our traffic laws. They are on the books, and they are made for the good of everyone," Odom stated.

"Our wish is to see these laws complied with—not because we make people comply, but because they, in their desire to be good law-abid citizens, obey voluntarily.

"We definitely have had no problems in the city of Pineland," Odom continued. "We have been accepted and helped in every way since our patrol station was established here."

Last Monday I received a long distance call from Silsbee from a lady who asked that I clip an article from the Houston Post and put it in The Star. Thinking she meant Monday's Post, I put the phone down only to discover, when it was too late, she must have meant Sunday's Post and this had been thrown away. Nowhere in Pineland could I find a Sunday Post intact. Nor could I find the article she mentioned in the Jasper Newsboy, the other paper she had mentioned phoning. I tried to get a Sunday paper from the man who delivers the Post. He had none. To make the crown of inefficiency complete, I never did ask the caller her name. This is to apologize by way of The Star and to ask her to send the article to me and I promise to get it printed.

The following was told me by a resident of the town.

In Nacogdoches there was a colored man who sold hot tamales. His conveyance was an old horse-drawn milk wagon and hidden away for a few select customers, he kept articles even more choice, in a dry county, than hot tamales.

Both wares were hawked:

"Hot tamales, hot tamales, and something else."

The something else was eventually identified; the man was jailed and fined.

After his release, the hot tamale hawking resumed, but the cry changed to:

"Hot tamales, hot tamales. And NOTHING else."

The first basketball games of the season are this week. A well-supported team has more incentive to play its best. Let's give this support.

Joining Linda Lou in her appeal, Gov. Price Daniel said, "Texas has taken a leading role in the effort to learn more about this mysterious destroyer with the hope of eventually erasing it. Home of the National Muscular Dystrophy Research Foundation is located in Liberty, Texas. Proponents of McGee Bend Dam Win Victory

Legal opposition to McGee Bend Dam apparently reached the end of the trail yesterday when the Supreme Court of the United States turned down an effort to bring before it two cases opposing the dam. The action by the high tribunal was hailed by Congressman Jack Brooks as an "end to harrassment," and "removal of a roadblock in the way of completion of the project." His Beaumont office received word of the action from his Washington office.

The suits had been pending in federal court for some time. The high court turned down petitions for writs of certiorari which would have placed the cases before it.

Authority Denied

The decisions handed down by lower courts, left in effect by the high court ruling, uphold the constitutional authority to build the dam, including the "high" or hydro-electric features.

One suit filed by the Neches River Conservation District contended the dam could not be built legally without permission from the state of Texas.

Decision Questioned

In a separate suit small owners challenged the constitutionality of condemnation of their homes and farms for the hydro-electric power unit on the ground the U. S. Corps of Engineers had reported it would be "economically unjustified" in a 1954 report to Congress.

The Dallas District Court granted the federal government's motion to dismiss both suits. In a decision of Feb. 13, the U. S. Court of Civil Appeals, New Orleans, affirmed that judgment. A rehearing was denied and backers for the writs of certiorari from the high court on June 23. This is the route toward appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court and the refusal to grant the writs was equivalent to a refusal to accept an appeal.

Commenting on the Supreme Court ruling Congressman Brooks declared:

"In refusing to consider the McGee Bend Dam opponents' lawsuits—designed to strangle fullscale development of our fresh water resources in Southeast Texas — the Supreme Court has brought to an end a part of the self-serving harassment deliberately planned to delay and defeat further construction of this vitally needed project.

"The people of Southeast Texas want and need the further economic devlopment that the full-sized McGee Bend Dam and a guaranteed year-round supply of fresh water will give us and Congress has repeatedly approved construction of the project. Already Congress has appropriated more than 10 million dollars in construction funds."

Rep. Brooks added:

"The Supreme Court's decision today upholding two previous decisions by the U. S. District Court and the Court of Appeals removed another one of the roadblocks that have been thrown in the way of completion of the project. I am continuing to work closely with the Corps of Engineers both here and in Washington in order to expedite in every way possible the economical and efficient completion of the authorized, full-size project."

PETROLEUM – basic to the needs of our time

Oil and natural gas have powered most of the great technological advances of modern times; petroleum hydrocarbons have transformed the dreams of inventors into the realities of engineers . . . Today, in the United States, oil and natural gas provide about 75% of the country's energy requirements; and large quantities of oil, available for production beyond immediate need, are necessary to the national security.

An obvious example is the gasoline that powers our automobiles; another is the diesel fuel burned by post-war railway engines. But do not overlook electric power plants, the airplane, whether jet or propeller driven, factory power plants, farm mechanization, and the revolution since World War II in home heating devices. Oil provides the energy that moves the trucks, airplanes, ships and tanks of our Armed Forces.

But petroleum as a source of energy is only part of the story. In the past two decades, the petrochemicals have supplied the country with a vigorous new industry: already most of our rubber is made from petrochemicals . . . the ubiquitous plastics derive from petroleum products . . . paraxylene, a petrochemical, is the raw material for one of the most useful of the new fabrics. In this area, wonders never cease; the petrochemicals contribute more each year to the efficiency, comfort, and convenience of modern living.

Thus, oil's progress has made other progress possible all along the front of American industry . . . Petroleum is the American resource that is basic to the needs of our time . . . that is essential to our national security.

The Humble Company, established in 1917, has developed with the industry.

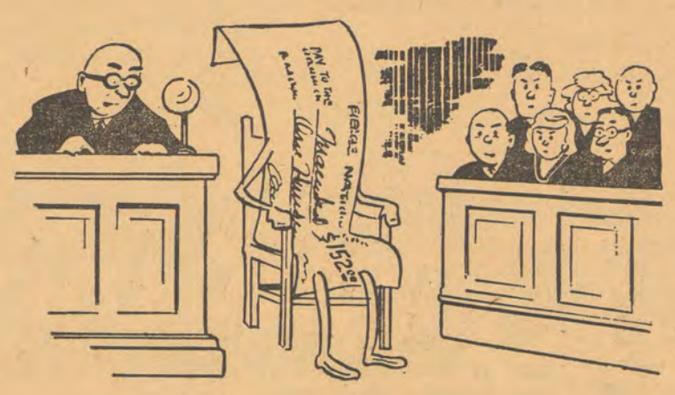

Humble's exploration activities extend from Florida around the rim of the country to California, Oregon and Washington, and beyond to the new State of Alaska . . . The Company is a leader in the production of oil and gas in the United States . . . Humble Pipe Line Company is a public carrier transporting not only Humble's oil but that of many other companies and independent producers to Gulf Coast terminals . . . Baytown refinery is one of the nation's great manufacturing plants . . . And Humble is a marketer in the Southwest, supplying the needs of motorists in modern service stations.

The Humble Company believes strongly in research, maintains two outstanding research facilities, and annually budgets considerable sums for this activity . . . Humble research has made substantial contributions to the discovery, production, and utilization of petroleum.

County Polio Chapter Gets National Aid

The Sabine County Chapter of the National Foundation, formerly the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, has used up all available local March of Dimes funds and has turned to the organization's national headquarters for help to supply patient aid for five county polio sufferers.

This was revealed today by Floyd Smith, chapter chairman, upon receipt of a check for $2,250 from national headquarters in New York.

"The National Foundation's newly announced health program goes far beyond polio," said Smith. "We now have become an organized voluntary force in the fields of medical scientific research, patient care and professional education, with sufficient flexibility to meet new health problems as they arise. To polio we have added the No. 1 crippler, arthritis, birth defects, virus diseases and disorders of the central nervous system. As soon as feasible, we will provide patient aid for children through the age of 18 suffering from arthritis and specific birth defects.

"We will still, however, continue to fulfill our obligations to all polio victims and no money will be spent on the newpatient care programs until after local polio patients with hospital, medical and appliance bills. Although there has been only one 'new' case in our area this year, this money is vitally needed for the care and rehabilitation of 'old' cases. Some of the patients we are now assisting were paralyzed by polio as far back as as 1935," Smith concluded.
