The Pineland Star

DEDICATED TO THE PROGRESS OF PINELAND AND SURROUNDING COMMUNITIES

VOLUME 1—NUMBER 28 | THE PINELAND STAR, PINELAND, TEXAS, THURSDAY, OCT. 30, 1958 | $2.00 PER YEAR

Market News from Southern Pine

This week Temple seat sales were down slightly. However, we were able to sell practically our weekly plant production.

Although we have good volume, the price of seats in this very competitive market continues to be disappointing.

It is interesting to note that Temple seat sales have increased by 38.74 per cent to date this year over the same period of time in 1957.

Don H. Burnley

Temple treat orders were slow again this week and competition appears to be keener than in previous weeks. We still have a good backlog of orders, but the large majority are for delayed shipment. Even so, processing, treatment and shipments have been at operating capacity.

Hardwood orders too were slow, however, we are going into the season of the year when hardwood orders always slow up. Furniture manufacturers from now through the end of the year, will purchase only what hardwood they are sure they can use and at the same time will be reducing their inventories. This is not distressing inasmuch as there is practically no dry hardwoods available in the furniture grades and species. Stocks of hardwood lumber at the mills will build up during the next 90 days.

Ed. Price

"SPIB 77 lumber products have not sold as well as we had hoped during the month of October, but we did manage to have a fair backlog of orders from previous months that have permited us to continue with a fair rate of shipments. We have reached the time of year when most yards begin taking their inventories and any orders developed will be for stock that these yards have already sold and prompt service will be the primary factor in making a sale. W should be able to provic prompt service during t months of November and cember as our backlog will have dwindled

SP Supreme Oak Flooring sales are very slow but we are attempting to sell the surplus of Select and Clear Oak Flooring. If and when we can sell this surplus, the volume of sales should rise and the rate of shipments should remain at a satisfactory level. We hope that our attempt to move these surplus items will begin to develop some orders promptly.

Nine Amendments to Be Voted on In General Election Next Tuesday

Nine proposed amendments to the Texas constitution makes the general election Nov. 4 an important one. All voters of Sabine County should exercise their right to vote for or against these amendments. It is expected that the turn-out of voters will be higher than usual for a general election because of the publicity given the controversial Amendment No. 7 which proposes to allow the State of Texas to appropriate funds for advertising the advantages of the state.

Price Daniel and Martin Dies, Jr. have Republican opponents on the Sabine County ballot. They are Edwin S. Mayer and Elmer F. Ball, for governor and state senator respectively.

Ben Ramsey is opposed on the ballot by Phillip Lee Eubank running on the Constitution party, for lieutenant governor. Another Constitution party candidate is opposing Will Wilson for attorney general. He is Muckleroy McDaniel.

Polls will open in the regular voting places of the county at 8 a.m. and close at 6 p.m.

Elsewhere on this page of the Reporter is a brief digest of the nine proposed amendments to be voted on Tuesday.

Star Gazing

BY CHARLOTTE SMITH

Tuesday night every one of us in the town of Pineland, white and colored, will have an opportunity to prove our worth as a good citizen.

It is easy to critize. Not only in Pineland, but in every town, there is the faction that takes the easy way toward improvement. The Road of Criticism. All the effort it requires is a little breathing of the air, which is free, to get the breath to use the voice.

Freedom gives us the right to criticize. That is everybody's privilege.

But freedom also gives us the right and the privilege to take part, as individual citizens ,in trying to remedy the situation that needed criticizing.

Tuesday night we have an opportunity to help remedy many situations in our town of Pineland that perhaps merited criticism.

Let each of us do our part by appearing before the City Council in its meeting at the Community Hall Tuesday night at 7, we can offer suggestions, we can learn more about the Urban Renewal program, which, if we show enough interest, can transform Pineland. The important thing at this point is to show our interest in our town and in the program by going to that meeting Tuesday night.

Mrs. O'Riley attended the Bickham reunion at Deweyville and spent a few days with her sister, Mrs. Bickham.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Milcul ka of Diboll were in Pineland Monday on business.

Meeting to Be Held November 4 for Discussing Urban Renewal Program

Tuesday evening, November 4, at 7 p.m. in the Community Hall, all citizens of Pineland, white and colored, are invited and urged to attend the meeting of Pineland City Council for the purpose of further questioning, discussing, and understanding of the Urban Renewal Program for our town, and to make suggestions for the town's welfare and improvement.

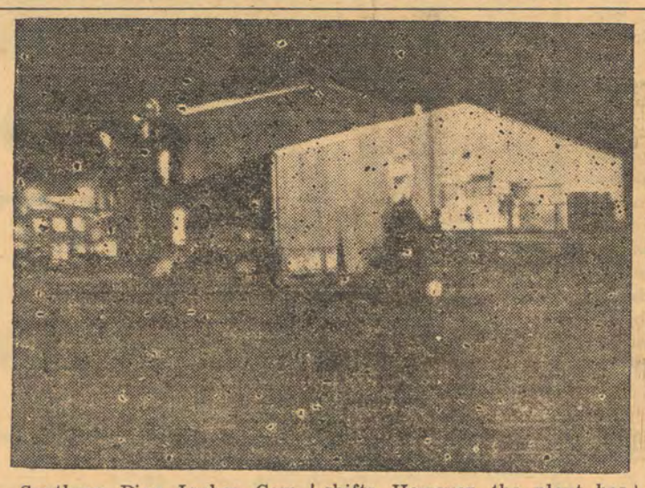

Meeting with the Council, to answer and explain to all citizens the meaning of the Urban Renewal Program, will be Mr. F. E. Woodruff of Fort Worth, Consultant Engineer, employed by the Council to work with the City in its planning for URA.

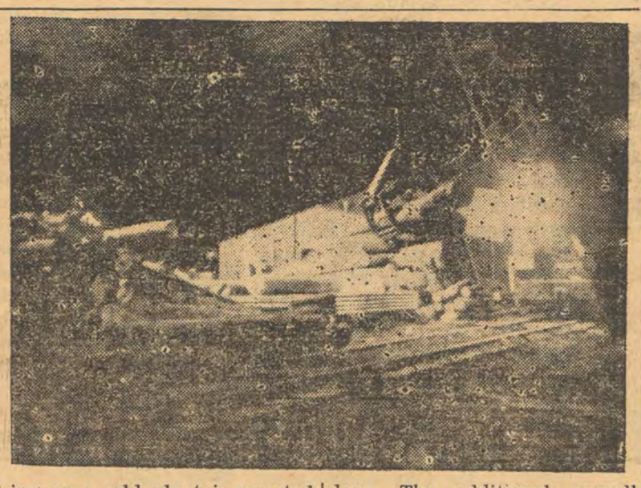

Possibilities for the improvement of Pineland are almost unlimited under the Urban Renewal Administration, a constituent of the Housing and Home Financing Agency of the Federal Government.

The URA program depends, essentially, on the people of a community. It is for this reason the Tuesday night meeting is important. The entire federal plan is dependent on a community surveying its total problem and showing one hundred percent interest in the solving of the problem.

Arthur Temple, president of Southern Pine Lumber Company has stated that "the Company is going to lend its assistance to every worthwhile project that will improve living conditions and make Pineland more attractive. However, the people themslves must now assume the responsibility for promoting and accomplishing worthwhile improvements.

"During the past year, the people have demonstrated their ability and willingness to do so. Enthusiasm and determination will accomplish wonders."

Southern Pine Lmber Company at their completely new fully automated forest products plant in Pineland, Texas claims a new first for the industry: A continuous 24 hour operation.

According to officials of the company, no other lumber manufacturer is known to operate around the clock. Carefully avoiding the time worn phrase "they said it couldn't be done", they do assert that skepticism was widespread in the industry when it was proposed to put the new all-hardwood plant on three shifts. However, the plant has been operating now since August 11, long enough to iron out the kinks and to prove that it is as practical for sawmilling as it is for any other industry to make maximum use of plant capacity.

Arguments in the past have contended that time was needed in the 24 hour day for repairs and adjustments. Southern Pine Lumber Company officials assert that weekend shutdowns are adequate and that operational advantage of keeping the plant "work" more than compensates. Starting up a cold plant is asserted to be a possible cause of some repairs needed in ordinary practice.

View in one picture shows the second shift coming off at 11:00 p.m. after having been relieved by the late shift.

The new plant designed for the production of 150,000 feet per 24 hours is now up to a regular production of 140,000 feet and expects to obtain 150,000 feet within a month.

The 24 hour operation affords employment for 45 additional men in the plant alone. The additional payroll is reported to have had a healthy effect on the economy of the Pineland region.

Meal time is allowed on each shift on regular company time. The new plant is composed of two head rigs with automatic setworks and a vertical resaw on the green chain. According to Jack Sweeny, manager, the new plant is making the most uniform lumber possible.

J. J. Boyett is superintendent of the first shift, L. M. Goodwin of the evening shift.

The program will be relayed to the East Texas region north of Angelina County by KTRE-TV.

A week goes by fast and it's pretty hard to have something to show for it in the way of of accomplishments. Last week I bounced around pretty much according to pattern trying to earn my keep chasing forest products markets.

On Monday I flew to Austin where I had a conference at the Texas Research League and later a brief visit at the Texas Insurance Commission trying to learn more about how they set the insurance premiums on wood buildings and how we might figure out some way to get these premiums based on experience with modern construction.

While I was there I had lunch at the regular board meeting of Tex. Fine Arts Association. One of the most interesting sidelights of this meeting was that it was held in the Austin Woman's Club, which is a 75 year old building constructed by a man who came to Austin from Connecticut and made his fortune there. The interior paneling throughout the downstairs is of exquisite curly pine. Southern pine, that is. We no longer saw for these beautiful patterns but they are no less charming. This interior told me again that our product is not lacking in any respect, for the wood itself is as good as the day it was put in and more beautiful, if anything. Where we are now lacking is in ideas and designs for using wood to bring out its merits.

The TFAA is making important plans for becoming more active all over the state in order to give folks who are interested in pictures a chance to participate more.

During the afternoon, before flying back to Diboll, I went by to see Ed Cullen and Bill Drake of Calcasieu Lumber Company. Calcasieu has about four big stores in Austin and does a very progressive building material business. The only trouble with them is that they don't do enough lumber business with the company that I work for, although they do buy a lot of wood parts from us for an affiliated company which manufactures furniture. Bill Drake, in addition to being the head of Caccasieu empire, is president of Lumbermen's Investment Corporation which was recently organized by Texas lumber dealers to provide money for home building in small communities. This has been a great thing for people who want to build homes in small towns and swall communities over Texas and has been a boon to lumber dealers.

On Wednesday I drove in the rain in Houston. While there I went by Foley's to see how one of our products is selling. Bob Dundas, vice president, is one of the most down-to-earth individuals I have met in a long time. Like most men of outstanding ability, there is no bluff about him, but he is thoughtful and patient. It doesn't take long to discover how keen his thinking ills. One of the policies of this great store, according to Bob, is that they do their best to give full recognition and preference to suppliers in the region of which they are a part. I blieve that's one reason that they are a great store.

Next, I checked with the lumbermen about FHA practices and discussed further ways and means in which we could encourage FHA to enforce their minimum property requirements for the protection of home owners. This is a hard problem to whip. Next, Herschel Payne, our Houston representative, and I went out to see a man who runs a gift distributing business to talk about selling him kitchen blocks for distribution all over the country. From there we went by to see Carroll Delhomme, retail lumberman and hardwood specialist. We saw his new office which is paneled throughout with beautiful hardwoods manufactured by the company I work for. Carroll is a gentleman of outstanding character and integrity. When I go see him I know that he is going to make the rest of my day mean more, because he is a straight shooter and always has interesting ideas. He doesn't mind telling you when he thinks you're wrong about something, but he gives you credit when you work hard to please him.

After that we went over to see Bob Sells, who represents the treating plant in Diboll.

It was late when I drove in Wednesday night, but McQueen and I flew out to Memphis Thursday morning as early as the fog would let us.

In Memphis I attended a meeting of hardwood flooring manufacturers who got together for a full discussion of the problems the oak flooring market faces because of the widespread use of concrete slab construction.

Slab construction, now in vogue because a cheap slab can be poured quickly and easily by a builder and accepted by a home buyer who doesn't know any better, is still on the increase. Its use takes 25 per cent of the softwood lumber market and about 30 per cent of the oak market.

We didn't decide exactly what we could do about it, but no one doubts that we will meet this problum just as we have met the threats of passing fads in the southern pine and southern hardwood industry for 350 years.

A slab reminds me in some way of the fashion in ancient China when they wrapped the feet of baby girls because they thought they were more beautiful even if it crippled them. Now women cripple themselves living in homes built on slabs because they think they are keeping up with the Joneses.
