M. M. Millers Diligent Workers In All Worthwhile Civic Affairs

The M. M. Millers came to Pineland in 1956 when the School Board, from all applicants, elected Mr. Miller as superintendent of the Pineland Independent School District, to fill the vacancy created by Herman King's resignation.

Born in Shelby County, Mr. Miller finished Center High School in 1937 and enrolled at Stephen F. Austin State College, Nacogdoches, in 1940. His college work was interrupted for three years when he enlisted in the Navy in 1942. But after his discharge in 1945, he returned to SFA, received his B.S. in the spring of 1946 and his masters in 1948. During the time he studied for his masters, Miller taught in the Nacogdoches County public school system.

The year of 1947-48 Miller served as principal of the Chireno High School and in 1949 was elected superintendent of the Chireno Independent School District, a position he held until coming to Pineland. And it was in August of this same year that he married Joy Holt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Holt of San Augustine County. Mrs. Miller, graduated in 1945 from San Augustine High School and attended SFA for three years following.

The Millers have three children, and soon a fourth. Jennifer is 7, Sally is 4 and Mary is 3.

Both the Millers are members of the Baptist Church, and Bronson Chapter 337, Order of the Eastern Star. Mr. Miller belongs to Swift Masonic Lodge of Nacogdoches County. Mrs. Miller serves this year as second vice-president of the P.-T.A. Both are diligent workers in all civic affairs.

Market News from Southern Pine

There is not much change in our furniture dimension production since our last report. Our order file is satisfactory and we are running on a normal basis a nd do not anticipate any change between now and Christmas.

TEMPLE WOOD PARTS
CARL H. SANDERS

"Orders for SPIB lumber products developed at a very close-to-normal rate during the first week of November. November is usually a fairly slow month and the sales this first week were slightly better than we had expected. We are now in a position to offer more prompt service than we have provided in the past few months and we should develop some orders with this service.

"Southern Pine Supreme Oak Flooring sales are slower than expected. It is our hope that considerable more activity will develop in the flooring market before a general price break occurs. We can continue to develop a good volume of flooring sales but have been reluctant to change our price structure drastically in order to do this. We are still concentrating efforts toward moving surplus items only."

R. M. Burns

Temple Seat sales during the past week have been a little bit off. However, this relief from sales pressure is welcome since the heavy volume of sales during past weeks h a v e severely unbalanced our inventory from which we ship.

Prices continue low but there are some indications that an upward turn in the market may be hoped for, since other leading manufacturers of seats are reported to be in a similarly oversold condition.

Don H. Burnley

Templetreat sales this week were very good, and while we did not book any extra large orders, we had numerous orders calling for one car load or one truck load. This type business is usually the business that brings the better prices. Backlog of orders at the treating division are approximately 300,000. S h i p ments have been good and the only difficulty has been procurement.

Hardwood lumber continues active and appears to have gained momentum within the last 10 days. Prices remain firm, and generally speaking are good. Bookings have been below average in as much as our inventory of dry lumber is very low. Large part of the inventory is covered by orders that were accepted b a c k in September and October.

Star Gazing

BY CHARLOTTE SMITH

Shirley Rhame found 2 1/2 year old Pam gazing raptly at a picture of Jesus. "Look, Mommy," she stated approvingly, pointing to the shiny halo, "Even Jesus has a hula hoop."

Of all the Pineland Tangle Town contestants one was a winner. Mary Belle Hayes. Her check for $15.00 might have seemed inadequate reward for all the work that went into the puzzles; but it was with pride I learned a Pinelander had won one of the prizes.

Sunday night, for the first time since school opened the first of Septembr, I watched a television program. The Loretta Young Show. And I wish everybody had seen it, because a subject dear to my heart was featured: the power of the people in a government such as ours: that voting is a God given privelege. Other points of interest, to me, Miss Young - as a teacher - and the PTA as a power in the community. I was reading in the November issue of Texas Parent Teacher, the following excerpt from Bill Dozier's column in the Tyler Courier-Times "Rose City Rambler":

"In the course of going to a PTA meeting last night, Rambler ran upon something that I think is outstanding. I just wonder if any other school in Tyler or its environs can top this:

"The school cafetorium was packed. Others were standing outside listening and looking through the windows. The president announced that membership had reached the awe-inspiring total of 753 mothers and fathers! (Just under 98 per cent of all parents).

Someday I hope to make the same statement about Pineland and the PTA.

We Pinelanders are as proud of that Silver Beaver scouting award Mr. John Lindsey received Monday night as he is.

Last weekend the men of the town took their annual hunting-fishing trip. By annual I do not mean these men go hunting and fishing once a year. This annual means they go together once a year. And when the wives say "But you went fishing last weekend," they can reply, truthfully, "But everybody else is going."

One fish got caught and fifteen squirrels got killed, according to the hunters and fishers. This was really secondary in importance, however. Of primary importance was relaxation, away from the mad rush of the business world, back to nature on near-inaccessible Watson's Lake near Burkeville, with pioneer spirit to the fore.

Ben Smith, Jr., Joel Sample, Carl Sanders, Leonard and Murry Kilgore, Bill Swearingen, Bob Morgan, Elmer Earl McDonald, Mutt Barlow, Barney Smith, W. S. Burch, Bill Taylor, Carroll Johnson, G. W. Russell, Earl Culbertson, Royce Roberts, J. L. McGuire, C. E. Sloan, and Clyde Martin, (with apologies for anyone I have not mentioned).

A few concessions to modern convenience were condescendingly carried along. A butane tank and butane cook stove, with oven for instance.

The main comforts of civil-ization left behind were wives, children, and telephones.

The award, created and furnished by Hobbs Manufacturing Company of Fort Worth, is made to truck drivers cited by the Texas Department of Public Safety for outstanding courtesy on the road. It carries with it an emblazoned cigarette lighter, a pocket identification and membership in the exclusive ranks of "Knights of the Road."

"Mr. J. J. Carr of Diboll, Texas, who is employed by Southern Pine Lumber Company of Diboll, Texas, is hereby recommended to receive a Hobbs Knight of the Road Awards for his act of outstanding highway courtesy w i t nessed July 28, 1958, on U.S. 77, 8 miles south of LaGrange, while he was driving a truck. His action a n d the circumstances surrounding it, were as follows:

Mr. Carr was proceeding north on U.S. 77 from Schulenburg to LaGrange on the morning o July 28, 1958. Approximately 8 miles south of LaGrange a truck load of Negro cotton pickers had stopped on the roadway to put some oil in the engine. Just after passing the stopped truck Mr. Carr met an automobile going south on 77. When approximately 200 feet past the truck Mr. Carr noticed in his rear view mirror that the car had struck the rear of the truck, which was at about 4 a.m. Mr. Carr stopped his truck and immediately returned to the scene of the accident, set out flares and started directing traffic, the first automobile coming by was notified to call an ambulance when it arrived in Schulenburg. Mr. Carr remained at the scene of the accident until the Highway Patrol arrived and also gave details as to what happened and advised that he would testify in court if needed."

Carr was honored at a special dinner at the Pine Bough Restaurant in Diboll at which officers of the Texas Department of Public Safety, personnel from Hobbs Trailers and members of Southern Pine Lumber Company were present.

Pictured with Carr are Officer Homer Spears of the Texas Department of Public Safety and Willis Jordan, Southern P i n e Lumber Company trucking superintendent.

Also present at the ceremony were Captain John Strother, Sgt. Bob Jones, Officer John Connor of the Department of Public Safety, Arkie Conine, Jim Yarborough, Bill Prado of Hobbs Trailers, Arthur Temple, Joe Denman, Vernon Burkhalter and Latane' Temple.

HOW MANY FEEDERS AND WATERERS FOR TOP PERFORMANCE WITH BROILERS?

The more feed and water the broiler grower can get into his birds in the shortest period of time will very likely determine, more than any other factor within his control, how profitable his operations are.

Silas McHenry, Poultry specialist for the University of Delaware, after studying of numerous tests by growers concluded that 20 five-foot feeders or 100 feet of trough space should be provided for each 1000 birds. In one experiment increasing the number of feeders from 10 to 20 per 1000 birds resulted in birds reaching the same weight one week sooner on two-thirds a pound less feed per pound of meat produced.

Mr. McHenry, after summarizing all experiments and field observations on the amount of water space for broiler production states that a minimum of 4 four-foot water troughs or their equivalent should be provided for each 1000 broilers during the fall, winter and spring months and at least 6 four-foot troughs during warm weather.

Dr. Jones Advises Everyone to Get Flu Vaccine

Dr. Gordon Jones advises that a recurrence of the Asian strain of Type A influenza has been reported in Asia by World Health Organization doctors. It is a fact which may eventually influence us and because of this Dr. Jones recommends immediate vaccination, especially for children as the attack rate of the flu is greatest at 5 to 9 years of age.

Reactions encountered by people injected with flu vaccine are no more serious than reactions to such common "shots" as those given against typhoid, smallpox and tetanus.

Vaccination is the only proved measure protective against human influenza, according to medical authorities. Of more than a million soldiers given Asian flu shots, only three in 10,000 men lost time from duty. The Army even now is vaccinating its personnel around the world.

Dr. Jones requested that the following excerpt from a recent Houston Post Article on the flu epidemic be reprinted for The Star.

Questions and Answers On Influenza

Q. What is influenza? A. An acute, infectious disease characterized by fever, headache, extreme weakness, malaise and inflammation of the respiratory or gastro-intestinal tract.

Q. How is the flu spread? A. It is usually communicated by personal contact. Influenza passes from a diseased person to a healthy person who breathes in fluid droplets containing live virus. The virus may be coughed or sneezed from the throat, nose or lungs.

Q. How long does the flu last? A. Four or five days. During this time the sufferer often has fever from 101 to 104. A patient can expect to resume normal activity in a week.

Q. How lethal is the flu? A. In its uncomplicated form, recovery is the rule. However, there is a constant threat of secondary infection, usually pneumonia or bronchitis. The fatalities recorded have been due to such pulmonary involvement.

Q. How can the dangerous complications be treated? A. Antibiotics and sulfa drugs are highly effective and are responsible for greatly reducing the mortality rates.

Q. How effective is the flu vaccine? A. Vaccine is estimated to be 70 to 80 per cent effective.

Q. Should those vaccinated last year be vaccinated again? A. Yes. Those who had shots against Asian flu last year should get a booster dose of vaccine.

Q. If a person escaped flu last year, can it be assumed he or she had a natural immunity to it? A. People who escaped in 1957 andl were not vaccinated can contract the disease.

Q. Will enough vaccine be available? A. Indications are that there are sufficient supplies of monavalent Asian flu vaccine available for all who want it. The new polyalent vaccine will also be available, although not in as large supplies.

Q. How should the flu be treated once you have it? A. There is not much you can do except to take aspirin to relieve the pain. Antibiotics are recommended if complications appear. Patients are advised to remain in bed 24 to 48 hours after their temperature drops to normal. Diet should be kept light, with emphasis on fluids.

There have been lots of books written by famous people titled "The Women I Have Known" or "The Men I Have Known."

Someday I'd like to write a book titled "The Houses I Have Known." It has been my destiny to move many times during my lifetime, many of them since I was married. During my 20 years as a family man, my wife and I have lived in seven houses and three apartments, not counting the innumerable lodgings we had when I was in the Army before going overseas. Among the houses we lived in, we have owned five.

Th first one we owned was a wooden house built of the best Southern Pine lumber on pier and beams. The house cost us $3,500, to the best of my recollection. This low cost not only reflects a change in the purchasing power of a dollar but also the comparative lack of features back in 1940 which are fairly prevalent now. It was a three bedroom house with a spacious kitchen, a fireplace in the living room and two screened-in porches. However, there was no floor furnace or other type of installed heater. It did have an attic fan. The sink was single and it goes without saying that there were no built-in appliances. It was just a good house with oak floors with bevel siding on the exterior and wallpaper over shiplap inside. That was a good house and some of our happiest years were spent there. When we sold it we made money on it and I estimate that it is worth today at least four times what it cost us.

The next house we owned was after the war in Little Rock. This was a two-story house with a generous basement and floored attic. It had central heating but not air conditioning. It, too, was built strong according to the tried and true techniques. It was sturdy Southern pine throughout with hardwood floors, wood exterior siding and wallpaper interiors like the previous one. Its sheathing was diagonal shiplap and all the windows were weatherstripped. When the wind blew hard, we knew that our house would be standing with the last of them. There was a little dogwood tree about yea high in the front yard. The last time I went by there it covered the whole front of house almost. We were very comfortable in that house. While we were living there, however, a real estate man showed us a tract of acreage out in the country that had the most beautiful view to the west that we had ever seen and before we knew it we had traded for the property.

On this property we built our home with broad double-paned windows looking over the view. This house was built solidly of Texas yellow pine lumber from Diboll and had central heating and air conditioning in it. We started out on a very unrealistic estimate and when I found out finally how much it cost I was ready to go to the poorhouse. It wouldn't have seemed like a lot of money to most people but it seemed like a fortune to me. The house was on two levels and rambled over about 2,500 square feet. By that time we had three children and they had four small bedrooms, one for each and one for good measure. It wasn't long before all four of the children's cubicles were occupied. Our living room was really the room we lived in, in contrast with many families nowadays. It was a big room with a fireplace in it, with random width ranch plank oak flooring. We could walk out on a terrace and in certain times of the year I felt like a king when my wife would serve my breakfast out there. I nearly killed myself at this house trying to take care of the yard. Because we had six and a half acres, I kept pushing the boundaries of the mowed portion back. I would rush home every weekend and work feverishly until I fell in the bed Sunday night, having just barely finished mowing. That was the house we sold to move to Angelina County in January of 1953.

When we came here we lived in Mrs. Rutland's (now Josephine Fredricks) excellent two-story house on Jefferson which was built by Temple Associates back in about nineteen forty something. This was tried and true construction too and we were really comfortable there, but she and Josephine decided to move back into it so we had to hastily find other quarters. That was when we bought one of the new vogue speculative houses which are so popular nowadays.

This house had brick siding on it and was built on a slab. It had a low gable with barely any crawl space in the attic. Its framework was of green foreign species and its windows were aluminum. My wife, generally stronger in every respect than I am (as much as I hate to admit it) started having leg and back fatigue from standing on concrete all day. When the washing machine overflowed in the kitchen it ruined the carpet in the living room because it flowed under the partition. The brick accumulated heat all day long and transmitted it into the house all night long in the summertime. The air conditioning escaped through the aluminum casements almost as fast as if the windows were open. We never felt like adding on to this house because we didn't feel that we had the kind of construction we wanted to add on to. When a similar house was built across the street and they brought the green foreign wood in one of its lowest grades and piled it on the jobsite, I began to lose my peace of mind. Every morning they would hose the pile of lumber down to keep it from shrinking and warping and to keep the knots from falling out before they got it into the construction. Finally my wife very wisely suggested that we go looking for a lot to build on. That was when we saw the old Roberts home on Raguet and Kerr was for sale. We bought it and started remodeling it while we tried to sell the other house.

The Roberts house fitted our way of thinking completely. It was built throughout exterior and interior of Southern pine which is just as good today as it was in 1917 when it went into the house. The ceilings are 10 feet high and the attic was so spacious that we are now putting a large room up there in addition to an out-of-season clothes closet which we put in at the time we remodeled the house in 1956. The first thing that struck my wife about the new house after we moved out of the one with the gypsum board interior was how good the acoustics were inside. She was surprised that she couldn't stand in the kitchen and be heard when she hollered at the children in the bedrooms. She quit having aches and pains in her legs and back also. One of the things we did when we moved into the house was put wooden paneling in the living room over the shiplap. The rest of the house was repapered. We built a high treated wooden fence around the back yard and I took the brick that came out of the old flues and made a paved back yard patio. Not much to look at on the outside, this house is one that we both fall in love with all over again every day.

Incidentally, we repainted this house in August of 1956 and the paint appears to be as good and fresh today as it was then.

We've never been much for cars or for show but we do an awful lot of living in a house. The houses we have owned which were constructed of good, seasoned Southern pine and wooden floors have enriched our lives. The one buy we consider a poor one taught us a lesson we will always remember.

Tuesday evening citizens of Pineland met with the City Council to discuss the proposed Urban Renewal program. F. E. Woodruff of Fort Worth, consulting engineer retained by the City in connection with the Renewal program spoke to the group, answering questions, and explaining the program.

Very few citizens were present although the meeting had been well publicized, and the importance of the Urban Renewal program stressed many times. According to Arthur Temple, Jr., "the very future of Pineland may rest on this program."

Albert Keith spoke, and well, on behalf of his people.

Urban Renewal has been used rather extensively by the larger cities. This is the first time a small city has attempted the program, Mr. Woodruff stated.

The federal government looking toward the future, specifies that government financed homes have adequate facilities such as sewage and water systems. In our recent bond election, enough money was voted to afford these adequate facilities for our town and enough money is left to finance, completely, the remainder of the Urban Renewal program, or 25 per cent. The remaining 75 per cent the government gives.

At the present time, to receive this grant, Pineland must have an overall plan for presentation, and the people must show that they WANT the program.

Engineers predict an increase in population in the next ten years equal to that of the last forty years percentwise. Housing is vitally important.

Rents for the houses will be in accordance to the salaries earned by occupants. After construction, the houses may be purchased for as little as $25.00 or $30.00 per month and paid for over a period of 30 or 40 years.

Qualified voters of the city on December 6 are to determine whether or not they want to go ahead with the improvement of Pineland under the Urban Renewal Program, a guarantee to us and to our posterity of a solid business district, a solid residential area, and excellent recreation area.
